My name is Vicky Kelman, and I have been a ski instructor at Copper Mountain. A fellow ski instructor referred me to Dr. Auth. He saw how much pain I was in and he said, "Dr. Auth is your answer, you must go see him. I had been suffering from degenerative disc disease for 10 years and I tried physical therapy, I tried dry needling, acupuncture and I did steroid shots.

The key factor that help make up my mind to do the DRS was the fact that none of the prior treatments had a lasting effect. My initial experience with the DRS treatment was actually very pleasant. I knew I was in good hands, so I wasn't nervous at all. I would be on the machine for Lumbar first for 25 minutes and then I would move over to the cervical treatment table for another 25 minutes while having my neck treated. The first couple treatments were a little painful afterwards; I did a lot of icing. But after a while I actually looked forward to coming and relaxing. I would recommend the DRS Protocol to anyone that is in pain due to spinal injuries. If you have tried everything I have already and realized that it's all a Band-Aid, it's all very temporary. It is a commitment, but it is well worth it.
